BERLIN, Jan. 20.—In what one influential newspaper termed their "final meeting prior to invasion of England" Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler and Premier Benito Mussolini held a council of war today.

The meeting took place amid a secrecy far exceeding that which has surrounded previous consultations between the two dictators.

So shielded was its time, place and nature that only an hour before the conference was announced in a brief formal statement, an official German spokesman had flatly denied to assembled correspondents that the meeting had taken place or presumably even was scheduled.

But at 3 p. m. (8 a. m. E. S. T.), the same source greeted puzzled newspapermen with this announcement:

"The Fuehrer and Il Duce met today. An official communiqué may be expected."

The communiqué, however, failed to lift even a corner of the mantle of secrecy.

It simply said: "Reichsfuehrer Hitler and Premier Mussolini, in the presence of Reich Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano, met and conferred at length on all phases of the situation."

"In the spirit of the hearty friend-

Driving conditions were the worst over the week-end that they have been at any time this winter. Much of the snow which fell Saturday, melted, and then froze into an icy coating on all roads as the temperature dropped. Motorists, who came up from Pittsburgh last night, reported that the snow-line coming north started in around Portersville, while another local man who was in Steubenville Sunday, stated that the weather there was fairly pleasant.

Street department employees were out this morning, finishing the job of ashing street intersections, which was started Sunday, when traffic conditions were found to be extremely bad for motorists.

Once Again It's Inauguration Day In Washington

President Roosevelt and a general inauguration scene

For the first time in history a United States president is inaugurated for a third term as President Roosevelt renews his oath of office first taken in 1933 and again in 1937. Roosevelt's ninth year of office will not actually begin until March 4, since his first inauguration, in 1933, took place on that date. Since then Jan. 20 has been established as the day of inauguration. Supreme Court Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes administered the oath of office, a task he performed in 1933 and 1937.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Franklin Delano Roosevelt was inaugurated for the third time today as president of the United States and immediately dedicated his third-term administration to "perpetuate the integrity of democracy" and to preserve "its institutions" against foreign disruption.

Mr. Roosevelt achieved American immortality when Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes administered the presidential oath to him, for the third time, before a huge inaugural crowd in front of the Capitol.

The president then keynoted his third term with a simple inaugural address in which he called upon his countrymen to "muster the spirit of America and the faith of America" to preserve the "sacred fire of liberty and the destiny of the Republic in form of government."

We Do Not Retreat
From this high motive, he declared:

"We do not retreat. We are not content to stand still. As Americans, we go forward, in the service of our country, by the will of God."

The president began his precedent-shattering third term a moment after Vice President Henry A. Wallace was sworn in by the retiring Vice President John Nance Garner.

Chief Justice Hughes administered the 152-year-old oath to Mr. Roosevelt, the president touching his hand Bible at a passage, ending:

"And now abideth faith, hope, charity; these three; but the greatest of these is charity."

Then the president dedicated his inaugural address to "Democracy." He reviewed the place democracy has taken in the development of mankind, remarked that it was "still spreading on every continent" and told the American people its preservation furnished "highest justification for every sacrifice that we may make in the name of national defense."

Huge Crowd
A huge crowd, swarming across the Capitol plaza and shivering in intensely cold clear weather, cheered the president repeatedly.

The president's message was broadcast to the nation and by short wave radio to the ends of the earth. Millions upon millions of human beings heard him but of them all, the proudest probably was his 86-year-old mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt, who had the great privilege of watching her son take the presidential oath for the third time in eight years. A score of other Roosevelts were in the thronged stands.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—England can repel a German invasion.

This is my considered opinion based upon an intimate study of the defense wall erected about the British Isles since the dark days of Dunkirk.

England will, I am convinced, not only defeat any attempt to invade her shores, but, if the Germans are so brash as to try to cross the channel, will deliver so staggering a blow that it will open the way for a far quicker victory than can otherwise be obtained.

Britain Will Never Give Up

City firemen paid tribute to the memory of their departed comrades on Sunday evening when they gathered in the Central Presbyterian church for their annual memorial service.

Assembling at Central fire station, the group marched to the church in a body, where seats were reserved for them in the center section of the church. In spite of extremely adverse weather conditions, there was a large crowd present, and the pastor of the church, Dr. R. M. Patterson, delivered a fine sermon appropriate to the occasion.

Those who have died during the past year, and for whom the service was especially arranged were: Andrew B. Perry, William J. Moffatt, Marion J. Young, J. Russell Urmon, and James S. Young. Since the department was formed in 1873, 304 members have passed away.

The committee in charge of arrangements was composed of Fire Chief James E. Thomas, Herb Samuels, Ralph Carlson and Phil Craig.

German Quarters Predict Britain To Occupy Eire

BERLIN, Jan. 20.—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler and Premier Benito Mussolini met today for their "last conference before the war's climax" as informed German quarters predicted early British occupation of Eire.

Britain has always denied these charges and cites failure of her Norway campaign as proof of her lack of preparation in neutral areas. The influential Nazi newspaper Vreme of Belgrade today termed the Hitler-Mussolini conference as their "final meeting prior to invasion of England.")

The air ministry reported that the fires were quickly brought under control and that damage was light. There were few casualties.

Other units of the Luftwaffe bombed London and scattered towns in south and southeast England. Two Nazi bombers were shot down.

In revealing that Southampton was the main target of the night raiders, British authorities declared the attack was "not severe."

Air Raid On London

Air raid sirens sounded in London early in the evening, but no bombs were dropped until 1 a. m. this morning when a handful of planes penetrated the anti-aircraft barrage.

Several high explosive and incendiary bombs were unloaded in scattered sections of the city, and the attack came to an end at 2:30 a. m. when the all-clear signal sounded.

Rumanian officials said the assassin was identified as Dimitrov Sas-anov and asserted the affair was "entirely non-political." They refused to divulge any further details.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Reports reaching Belgrade from Bucharest said the German officer was shot five times and fatally wounded by a former Greek boxer named Axioti. These advices said the shooting occurred in front of Bucharest's Ambassador hotel following an altercation in a cafe. Axioti was reported under arrest.)

Outlaw Strike At Irvin Plant Ends

Prompt Action Taken By Murray

About 800 Employees Had Been Affected By Short-Lived Strike

MURRAY WARNS OF GREAT EMERGENCY

(International News Service) PITTSBURGH, Jan. 20.—Prompt action by CIO President Philip Murray today had ended the short-lived outlaw strike of about 800 employees at the Irvin works of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation.

The Sunday employees walked out in sympathy with the slab yard workers, who had become dissatisfied with alleged company delay in adjusting a number of grievances.

The chairman of the steel workers organizing committee, however, laid particular emphasis on the present national defense emergency, summoned union leaders to his office in downtown Pittsburgh and ordered an immediate "resumption of operations." Picket lines were withdrawn from the plant at once although full crews did not return to work until midnight. Murray told the workers:

Must Be Orderly

"Grievances must be settled by orderly processes. That's the only way they ever will be settled. This 'situation' must not be continued any longer. The grievances must be referred to national offices. It would be disastrous to lend comfort to a situation that might create more idleness at this time."

Murray then issued a general warning, declaring:

"The nation is passing through a great emergency. There is great confusion and it behooves labor to keep its feet on the ground."

Work in the mill came practically to a standstill yesterday when the 8 a. m. shift went out in sympathy with the slab workers. Union leaders had threatened withdrawal of some 3,500 men today before Murray's intervention.

ship between the two government chiefs and the close alliance between the two nations, the meeting demonstrated the fullest accord and unanimity of views on all questions.

The statement did not reveal whether the conference took place on German or Italian soil.

Capital Buzz

For 48 hours Berlin, Rome and other capitals had buzzed with reports that the dictators were to meet or already had met for their first conference since Italy invaded Greece and brought the Balkans into the theatre of war.

During all this time, the most credible information came from Belgrade, Yugoslavia, where the Nazi newspaper Vreme stated flatly that the war council, reported called at Hitler's initiative, was planned as the last to take place before the long-awaited, asion blow against England over her water barriers is struck.

Diplomatic observers attached great importance to the fact that Hitler and Mussolini chose a time for their meeting that preceded by only a few hours the third inaugural address of President Roosevelt.

His scheduled 12-minute broadcast was awaited in Berlin with mixed emotions. There was no advance indication of German reaction, but it was assumed this would parallel all comment which has been spoken since the president's "fireside chat" when he first promised "all-out" aid to England and transformation of the United States into a so-called "arsenal of democracy."

(The announcement of Kassala's recapture came 112 hours after the disclosure that British army officers have been 400 miles inside Italian Ethiopia for the past six months raising and training a force of native rebels.)

Penetrate Ethiopia

Penetrating into the heart of northwest Ethiopia with a large stock of arms, the British troops have been teaching the Ethiopians to strike at the rear and communications of the Italian forces.

Unofficial Cairo military quarters said that it indicated that the British high command was satisfied with the progress of operations in north Africa.

Despite desert sandstorms, royal air force planes were reported to be continuing their heavy aerial offensive against north Libyan bases.

R. A. P. pilots, who bombed Tobruk, reported that the anti-aircraft fire was extremely fierce. Only spasmodic ground fire was encountered in raids on Derna, 100 miles further west.

British reconnaissance patrols also reported that the bomb-damaged Italian cruiser Giorgio, lying in Tobruk harbor, was attempting to shell the British-held El Adem airbase on the outskirts of the surrounded garrison.

Familiar faces among those in the city, Saturday afternoon, were the men of Battery F, and the Service Battery, from the local Army. The soldiers were enjoying their weekend leave of absence with their families and friends, as it will not be long before they leave for their camp in Mississippi.

CORRESPONDENT SAYS ENGLAND CAN REPEL GERMAN INVASION

a period during which, as an American war correspondent attached to the British army, I saw a valiant but undefeated British army thrown back into the sea through no fault of its own but because its allies Belgium and France, crumbled on both its flanks.

Hitler's only chance of a successful invasion is to annihilate the British air force.

He tried it last fall. The wreckage of 3,000 German planes scattered about the beaches and downs of England are mute testimony of that failure. Several thousand German airmen are eating good British beef and playing pinch in British prison camps—guests for the duration.

Air experts who have watched the battle of Britain in the air have told me there is no reason why Germany should be able to obtain air mastery this spring any more than it was able last fall, for British air strength is increasing steadily.

Its plane losses have been a quarter of Germany's since the air blitz began last August, its pilot losses infinitesimal by comparison.

Britain Is Armed Citadel

Today Britain is an armed citadel.

Two million men—Britain's new army—backed up by another million home guards stand watch on English coasts, awaiting the expected onslaught.

Every sea approach is heavily mined or defended by powerful coastal defense guns. The beaches bristle with tank obstacles, barbed wire entanglements and land mines. An intricate "defense-in-depth" system extends into the back country. Airplanes obstacles have been erected on virtually every square acre that would offer a landing place for troop-carrying planes. At least one coastal area a tank trap extends for more than 100 miles. The coastal areas are alive with defending troops of all categories.

Coming back to America for the first time since the war began, one of my first impressions has been that England is facing virtual defeat—that it may all be over in a matter of a few weeks once a full-scale invasion is unleashed on the British Isles.

R. A. F. Performs Heroically

Through the anxious weeks of last summer and fall following the French collapse I shared this fear, for the equipment of its army lost in the Flanders debacle, its fleet scattered over the North Atlantic and Mediterranean protecting vital life-lines and watching the French fleet. England was almost without defense. Only the R.A.F. was available to perform an Herculean task.

Had Hitler struck swiftly with all the power of his war machine the last week in June or the first two or three weeks of July, he might have been in London in 10 days.

He waited, and I believe his one chance is gone.

When I returned from France with the last handful of British soldiers that had fought below the Somme after Dunkirk, I asked one of the most astute neutral military observers in London what he thought of Britain's chances.

"If Britain can hold out until winter, she will not lose the war," he told me.

I talked with him again the day before I left London and he was convinced the danger of England being overwhelmed by direct assault is now past.

Expect Big Attack

But that Germany will launch a full scale attack as soon as the weather permits is taken for granted in England today just as much as the blackout and nightly air bombing, Britain's army, to a man, is praying that the day will not be long delayed, and its battle cry will be "Dunkirk!"

The full scale attack is expected as early as March—if it comes. Hitler is not expected to wait until May this year. But the English no longer are taking long chances. The coastal ramparts are manned night and day.

German preparations in the ports of occupied countries flanking England from Norway to Southern France are continuing on a large scale. The R.A.F. daylight bomb and machinegun attacks on troop concentrations in the coastal areas of France indicate the extent of these preparations.

Thousands of self-propelled barges with jack-knife bows for landing tanks on the beaches, have been assembled in Dutch, Belgian and French ports despite constant hammering by R.A.F. bombers. Vast military stores are concentrated immediately back of the German-occupied coasts. In recent weeks scores of new gun emplacements for long range artillery have been erected commanding the Dover Straits.

May Be Blind

This activity may be a blind for a full out attack in the middle east where Germany hopes to save the stinging defeat meted out by the Greeks to the Italians in Albania and by the British to the Italian forces in Libya. It might be.

But military observers with whom I have talked recently still expect a full direct onslaught against England, however costly it may prove to Germany.

At the moment Germany is concentrating every available ounce of energy in attempting to strangle British production by bombing its industrial towns, its ports and its storage dumps, and at the same time to starve her into submission with a savage submarine, air and surface raider attack on Atlantic shipping.

Both methods of attack are taking their toll. The shipping attacks are especially critical. But I doubt they will win the war for Germany.

ASCAP was in the right, but made the usual mistake of abusing its power. It demanded five per cent of a broadcaster's receipts, whether it earned the money or not.

Ramsey-Shiner "All White" Wedding, Sunday, In Church

Snow flakes softly falling outside and echoes of the organ chimes of the First Presbyterian church resounding nuptial music, added further to the impressiveness of the "all white" wedding of Miss Jean Louise Ramsey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Ramsey of 331 Boyles avenue, when she became the bride of Lewis Reid Shiner, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph B. Shiner of 206 North Walnut street, in the presence of a throng of guests filling the church parlors and balcony to capacity, on Sunday afternoon, January 19.

A double significance is noted, it also marking the 25th wedding anniversary of the bride's parents, who were married on the 19th in New Castle at the same hour, 4:30 o'clock, another wish of the bride "come true".

A half hour before the approach of the bridal party, Mrs. Kathryn Nessler Allen, organist, played a program of appropriate nuptial selections, while the guests were being ushered to their seats by Ernest L. Stitzinger, Jr., Harold Young, Donald McIntosh, William Ramsey, a brother of the bride, C. Lamar Hollar and Robert Cole, the latter of Greenville.

Dr. J. J. McIlvaine, pastor, officiated with the single ring service before the altar, which was beautifully decorated with an arrangement of greenery, graceful palms and ferns. It was set off in the glow of three branching candelabra, holding stately lighted white cathedral candles, and in the background was the massive pipe organ, offsetting the picture.

Entering on the arm of her father, Ralph H. Ramsey, who gave her in marriage, the bride was most attractive in her wedding gown of ivory satin, made with long leg-mutton sleeves, sweetheart neckline and long train. Her veil of tulle, also entrain, fell from a sweetheart halo, which adorned her head, and she carried a quaint colonial bouquet of gardenias. A strand of matched pearls, a gift of the bridegroom, was her only jewelry, and she carried a handkerchief which her mother carried at her wedding 25 years ago.

As her sister's only attendant, Miss Ruth Ramsey appeared in a white net gown, toe length, with fitted brocade jacket which too was in tune with the quaint motif. Adorning her hair was a single orchid, and her colonial bouquet was of roses and sweetpeas.

Thomas Twaddle served the bridegroom as best man.

After the vows were exchanged, triumphant strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding Chorus were resounded, when the principals and attendants adjourned to the reception rooms at the rear of the church, where they received congratulations from their host of friends.

Following, a reception was held at the Ramsey residence for relatives and close friends. A wedding supper, buffet style, was served from a table appointed in white, with the traditional tiered wedding cake being prominently placed. Pouring were Mrs. Earl T. Ramsey, Mrs. Ralph Shiner, mother of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Lee H. Gunter, a resident of Pittsburgh. Aides included Mrs. Ruth Elder, Mrs. Harold Young, Mrs. Howard Purdy, Mrs. Ernest L. Stitzinger, Jr., Mrs. John N. Stone, Mrs. James L. Stone, Miss Louella, Miss Gertrude Hitchcock, Miss Marjorie Blim, Miss Betty Uber and Mrs. C. Lemar Hollar. Bouquets of cut flowers decorated the rooms of the house throughout, and those aiding Mrs. Ramsey were in semi-formal attire.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Ramsey wore a poude blue crepe, toe length dinner dress, with shoulder corsage of Talsmanian roses. Mrs. Shiner, the bridegroom's mother, was attired in a green crepe dinner dress, floor length, complimented with a shoulder bouquet of pink roses.

On Saturday evening a rehearsal dinner was given by co-hostesses, Mrs. Earl T. Ramsey, Mrs. Howard Purdy and Mrs. Harold Young, in the home of the former on Wallace avenue for the wedding party, and families, numbering upwards of 40. Sunday at noon, Mr. and Mrs. Hans N. Drio of North Mercer street were hosts at a breakfast.

Later in the evening the newlyweds departed on a southern trip, and plan on returning here in two weeks. They will reside temporarily at the home of the bride's parents.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Shiner are graduates of the New Castle senior high school, and she has since been affiliated with the local Bell Telephone company. He is connected with the General Floor company of this vicinity.

The beautiful wedding and shower gifts received by the couple, displayed at the Ramsey residence, further testified to the high esteem in which both are held.

Colds Have Launched A "BLITZKRIEG"!!

Watch Out For Your Family!

NOW with epidemic colds spreading their misery—be careful, be as careful as you can. Do everything possible to help safeguard your family against the "blitzkrieg". There are certain time-tested precautions you can take that may save you and yours a great deal of sickness, worry and expense.

First of all, get plenty of rest, good sound sleep. Eat simple but nourishing food—vegetables and fresh fruits if available. Drink plenty of water and keep elimination regular. Take some exercise every day—preferably outdoors in clean, fresh air. Then let trustworthy Vicks help you.

Use These Two Time-Tested Treatments Whenever Needed

To Help Prevent Many Colds from Developing

At the first sniffle, sneeze or sign of nasal irritation—put a few drops of Vicks Vapo-Rub on each nostril right away. This helps to prevent many colds from developing. Because Vapo-Rub is expressly designed to help your natural defenses against colds in the nose and upper throat where most colds start.

NOTE: If by chance you have a head cold, a few drops of Vicks Vapo-Rub on both sides of the nose should quickly relieve misery. It helps soothe irritation, shrink swollen membranes and clear out mucus-clogged nasal passages. As a result it makes breathing freer and easier and brings you comfort.

TIME-TESTED
VICKS
VAPO-RUB

To Quickly Relieve Miseries of Developed Colds

When a cold gets by all precautions and causes muscular soreness or tightness, spells of coughing or irritation in the upper bronchial tubes, relieve such misery the improved Vicks way—with a 3-minute VapoRub Massage.

Massage VapoRub for 3 minutes on IMPORTANT RIB-AREA OF BACK as well as throat and chest. Spread a thick layer over chest and cover up. This more thorough treatment actually increases the important STIMULATING-POULTICE action and PENETRATING-VAPOR action of VapoRub. And makes this famous old family standby work faster and longer to relieve distress of colds.

TIME-TESTED
VICKS
VAPORUB

REMEMBER THIS . . . Both Vapo-Rub and VapoRub have been thoroughly tested through years of constant use in millions of homes. If the miserable symptoms of the cold are not relieved promptly—or if more serious trouble seems to threaten—call in your family physician right away.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph.D.

PARENT AND CHILD SAME WORLD OVER

The longer I have been writing this column, reading letters, and listening to questions and problems from parents, the surer I am that parents' problems are about the same everywhere. With few exceptions these problems differ only in degree. But for the post mark and an occasional reference to "form" instead of "grade" as applied to school, I could not be able to recognize a letter as coming from Canada rather than from Texas, California or Maine. Parent-child relationships in the United States and Canada have no geography.

What may seem amazing to some of you is that I rarely hear or read a question or problem that seems basically new. Between last September and December, Mrs. Myers and I spoke before 194 groups, chiefly parents, totaling about 50,000 in 66 cities of 14 states. From practically every group there came questions from the audience. Moreover, at the close of each meeting individual parents presented problems to Mrs. Myers and me.

No New Questions
I can scarcely recall a single question or problem on this entire tour of 10,000 miles which I had not often heard, or read in a letter before. Indeed, one often gets too much credit for answering a question as if he had thought it all out at that moment, when, as a matter of fact, he probably had answered the same question hundreds of times before. And yet the parent asking it supposed, no doubt, that she was the only one in all the world facing such a problem!

We must remember, of course, that no answer by me or any other expert can be a complete solution, and some problems require personal study and clinical analysis by a specialist. About all one can do is to help the perplexed parent look at the problem objectively, see it from different angles in a new light, and break it up into smaller, simpler parts. To try to understand the child or children and the other persons involved better, and to manage himself or herself better. After all the parent must solve her own problems if they are to be solved at all. The hope is that with the aid of some suggestions she might arrive at an earlier and better solution. Indeed, many parents have informed me that such do happen.

Problems Discussed in Column
Incidentally, the problems which parents present to me face to face or by letter are the kind which are discussed in this column. As a matter of fact, I constantly aim in this column to cover those subjects which most parents write or talk about.

Parents who read this column over a period of years get nearly everything I have written in pamphlets, books and magazine articles—and then some. My books and pamphlets are in most good public libraries. Any one wishing to have a list of these books, together with selected books by various other writers to parents, should write me at 235 East 45th St., New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Solving Parent Problems
Q. Should the parent choose the vocation his child should prepare for and insist the child accept his choice?
A. No! No! No!

The World

LOOKING FORWARD.

We hope that most people now living all be spared to see something new come out of Washington as a panacea for good times, for a revised industry and more jobs. It would be more than a break-up of boredom with what we have had, it would be a new and more prosperous national economy.

These remarks are provoked by a statement from Nathan Straus, administrator of the United States Housing Authority. The administrator is looking forward, as all of us should be, to the time when defense expenditures will be ended—perhaps rather suddenly—and we shall face the danger of a new depression, with thousands of industrial plants idled and with new millions of men out of work.

The country recalls the abrupt shift it suffered shortly after the close of the World War, when training camps were deserted, when war material factories were closed and long rows of worker houses began to rot.

That much for looking ahead and preparing to avoid another such experience. The housing administrator has a preventative. But like others from the same source, it merely is a shift of government spending from defense to other projects. And with the housing administrator it is simply more housing—at the rate of 500,000 units a year.

Now the country needs more homes and it will need them when the defense activity begins to drop. But it has and will have many other needs. Certainly an abrupt end to defense spending would create severe dislocations. Some methods of tapering off would be justified. But the supreme demand should be for a basically sound and active industry all down the line—independent of so far as might be humanly possible, of the volume of governmental spending.

If that condition cannot be produced then we shall never be weaned away from the public treasury. Always it will be more and more from the government for one thing or another and, as time passes, for an ever growing number of purposes until eventually there will be no private initiative and government will dominate everything. We are sure thoughtful people do not want that and will help to bring the general awakening necessary to prevent it.

HINTS AND DINTS

Sun sets tonight 5.03. Sun rises tomorrow 7.18.

THEY ARE ALL GONE

I said good-bye to an old friend Saturday. Not farewell, just good-bye, for someday I expect to see Edwin L. Ayers again, and with him will be that band of heroes I worshipped as a boy who took me into their friendship as a man, the Grand Army of the Republic.

They were men apart, those G. A. R. men. Uncle Davy Needler, Clark Hamilton, John Rodgers, Commander D. M. Clark, Adam Onstott, Captain Love and all the others who made up the local chapter of the G. A. R. One by one they slipped away, perhaps they could hear a ghostly bugle, perhaps they wanted to sit around the camp fire with their buddies again, and so they left. Today the last of that gallant band is sitting around the camp fire with my old friends. Edwin L. Ayers was the last of them and I expect he was mighty lonesome for the past while back for of the 2600 or more Civil War men that went out of Lawrence County Mr. Ayers was the last to report to High Command.

Nothing I could say would add luster to the things the G. A. R. accomplished. With their stout hearts and high resolve they went out to save the Union and they did. Historians have written and minstrels have sung of their deeds at Gettysburg, at Antietam, at Chancellorsville. All I want to do is pay my personal tribute of esteem to Ed Ayers and the others.

My mind goes back thirty years when the Civil War veterans were still active enough to meet and participate in the civic duties of the day. It was my job to provide transportation for them to and from the ceremonies on Memorial Day.

In those days I had to get buses to haul them. Then it got down to the place where one bus was sufficient, then a few cars of friends cared for them and finally my own car would carry the two or three veterans who were able to get out.

They used to thank me for the service but in my heart I always thanked them for the privilege of serving them in a small way. To me the veterans of the Civil War weren't ordinary men. They were set apart from other men by their heroism and valor.

And now they have gone on to join the lads who preceded them. I have always thought the Almighty would have a special place for the men of the Civil War. A cool shady spot in a green valley, a spot reserved for men of valor, a spot where the alarms of war will never be heard.

By now the boys are welcoming Ed Ayers to their midst and what a lot of greeting and talking there must be. Post 100, G. A. R. has its full roster now. Commander D. M. Clark has a full list of veterans in his organization, while down here all we have left of the Civil War men is the memory of their gallantry, a memory that will grow brighter with the years.

Good-bye and not farewell. Things immortal do not pass away, they merely change and to me the men of the Civil War are immortals. Some day I'll sit around with them again and listen to their yarns. And though I may have heard them before, those yarns will always be new.

War Propaganda Bureau Needs Caution
Mistakes Of Creel's Committee Cited
Propaganda Issued By Truckload Now

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—If Uncle Sam's to have another department of propaganda, something like George Creel's Committee of Public Information, which functioned during the period of our participation in the last World War, Harvard's professor of government, Dr. C. J. Friedrich, warns that it shouldn't make the mistakes that he thinks the Creel outfit made while it was in operation.

There really is considerable talk in Washington of the desirability of setting up such an organization. The talkers don't employ the term "propaganda," because that word's unpopular, though Professor Friedrich uses it, probably for the reason that, seemingly, he isn't very favorable to the idea, and wants to stick a mean label onto it. Its proponents, however, speak of a "public information" department or bureau, approximately after the Creel concern's fashion.

Heaven knows that governmental information's available enough in our capital. Every executive department and independent agency has a publicity man or a whole staff. Collectively they issue releases by the truckload. To be sure, these handouts tell only what the various departments and agencies choose to tell; undoubtedly they're extremely reticent concerning quite a few facts that the public would be keenly interested in if they were ventilated also. The stuff's volume is enormous, though. But the advocates of a central publicity management argue that present sources of the dope are too scattered; they believe that co-ordination's needed.

Out of Control
Professor Friedrich finds no fault with George Creel personally. He says that George honestly sought to sell to the world the idea of a democratic victory and "a Wilsonian peace," but that the COMPUB, as it generally was called, got beyond his control and he was forced to stand by helplessly while his concept "was crushed beyond recognition"—the peace finally arrived at was anything but Wilsonian.

The fact is, asserts the professor, that the COMPUB's work was too effective.

It overly emphasized, he maintains, the necessity of "winning the war" in a purely military sense. Consequently, upon Germany's collapse at that particular war's end, according to the professor, the demagogues took it for granted that they'd won permanently and felt such a "false sense of security" that they didn't take the future into account, resulting in "the repudiation of President Wilson's program, both at home and abroad."

And that, observes the Harvard spokesman, amounted to the demagogues' loss of the war. In a way, he adds, the "false sense of security," created by the COMPUB, proved to be "the cradle of Hitlerism."

What's more, he goes on, the totalitarian powers are modeling their propaganda activities largely upon the COMPUB's pattern. "Particularly the Nazis," he remarks, "are known to have copied it extensively." He doesn't specifically ask the question, "Are we going to re-establish in this country, a setup that folk like the Nazis regard so highly?" It's a query that he rather implies, nevertheless.

In South America
Professor Friedrich's views interested me decidedly for I was on the COMPUB's payroll while we were in the last war. I was living in Buenos Aires when we broke in and, offering my services to the United States embassy, was assigned to the job of handling COMPUB matters throughout that part of South America.

It took pretty well there. I wrote most of it myself, for COMPUB headquarters didn't send me much. The Argentine, Uruguayan and Paraguayan newspapers liked it, though made a regular daily half page of it. English propagandists in the same vein were very jealous of it—it said it tended to build up false trade in the River Plate republics at John Bull's expense. Sir Ernest H. Shackleton was their chief South American propagandist at the time. As a south polar explorer he was a whizz, but he didn't know much about turning out good newspaper copy, so he wasn't very formidable competition.

If we're due to start another COMPUB, Professor Friedrich expresses the opinion that Latin America would be a suitable part of the globe for us to begin on. I agree with him.

The Knudsen Hostility

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20. EVERY day or so new defense positions are being created and new defense officials are being named. The result is immensely to increase the confusion of which there is already vastly too much. There is danger, too, that the machinery may become so cumbersome that all semblance of efficiency will be lost.

The need is for simplification rather than expansion. There are far too many people trying to do the same thing and far too many coordinators who do not co-ordinate—or, for that matter, do anything else. Some of the duplication and waste is inevitable because of the urgency and magnitude of the job, but a lot is due to the fact that instead of one man, or even two, running this job there are an almost innumerable number pressing in on the managerial end, bringing men down to Washington, installing them in offices and mapping out work.

IT, of course, would be impossible to run any business in this way, and it is impossible to get satisfactory results in thus operating a defense program. But nothing can be done about it. The President has not been able to bring himself to the point of delegating full power to one man. He has not been able to bring himself to the point of relinquishing power himself. He has—and does—make appointments to important defense posts without consultation with the heads of the O. P. M.

THE first that these know about it is when the new men arrive or they read it in the papers. Most of these selections are the result of pressure from Administration aides, but it is the President who signs the orders. This, of course, is pretty exasperating to the men who have been designated by the President as in command of the defense effort and upon whom the responsibility rests.

BUT there is a much more disturbing thing going on within the Administration than that. This is the deliberate campaign of disparagement which is being waged against Mr. Knudsen by the Left Wing New Dealers who in the past have been influential in White House affairs. To the members of this group can be traced the departure from the public man who thought that one good man who thought that Mr. Roosevelt agreed with his point of view, only to discover that his radical aides had completely changed his direction.

ONE recent example is Mr. John W. Hanes, but there have been many others. From the beginning these Administration aides, some of

FOREVER CHANGE

These changing times! When from the slime
The first of us began to climb
Some Paleozoic fossil said:
"The race is lost and hope is dead!"
From Cambrian to the Permian date
The serious-minded used to state:
"The urge to change is now so strong
The world must crash ere very long!"

All through the Mesozoic age
This was the verdict of the sage:
"Change! Change is all that I foresee.
Soon must the end of all things be!"

Up through the eras, one and all,
Since first mankind began to crawl
The pleasant past has been revered
And change regretted, fought and feared.
And still today the old and tired
See youth with inspiration fired
And shake their heads, grown white with frost,
Convinced that everything is lost.

THE truth, of course, is that these Presidential aides have so long been using businessmen as their targets that they are deeply resentful that any had to be called in to do this job of defense and determined not to permit them to become dominant.

Having run the country on a basis of hostility to businessmen for eight years, in a great emergency, admission must be made that there is no one in the New Deal of managerial capacity and that in a crisis realists must be placed upon the anti-Roosevelt representatives of Big Business, whom it had been the habit to berate and despise.

THE point has been reached where this hostility toward Mr. Knudsen is being more and more openly expressed. It is based on nothing except general animus and it would not be important but that the men who voice it have been and still are close to the President. On the surface, Mr. Roosevelt has been supporting Mr. Knudsen, who is indispensable to the program and whose personality and performance have long been public approval. But he has not given him supreme power; he has not withdrawn himself wholly from the defense organization, as it was indicated he would; and he has not moved to silence or rebuke Mr. Knudsen's detractors within his Administration, though undoubtedly he knows who they are and what they are doing.

HOW long this sort of thing will go on and where it will get no one can say. There are some who think ultimately these "advanced thinkers" will make their usual impression on Mr. Roosevelt and drive Mr. Knudsen out of Washington. Beyond question that is what they would like to do. There are, however, two reasons for believing they will not be successful. One is because Mr. Knudsen, so long as the President wants him, is going to stick to the job and is unaffected by the campaign. The other is because, if Mr. Knudsen should be forced out of his post, there would be a great public outcry and the President could get no one to take his place without giving him that complete authority which, up to date, the New Dealers have managed to stall off and which it enrages them to contemplate. It is appalling that this kind of thing should be going on in the midst of a crisis so grave, but every informed man in Washington knows it to be true.

The Great Game Of Politics

whom hold important posts, have been opposed to permitting the industrialists to play anything other than an advisory role in the defense program, insisting upon making it a New Deal job with the New Dealers at the helm. They have not been able to bring this about, but they have been able to prevent complete power being vested in an industrialist as the sole boss. It is they who forced the selection of Mr. Hillman as Associate Director with co-equal authority, and it is they who are today creating friction and conducting a feud.

THE attack upon Mr. Knudsen is more or less undercover, but it is nonetheless virulent for that. It takes two forms—one is the spreading of reports that Mr. Knudsen's ability has been greatly exaggerated and that, while he could be all right under proper direction, he is not fitted to manage the whole defense effort himself; second, argument that because of his connection with General Motors and his general background he is unable to make impartially the decisions which must be made, but is bound to take the big business slant.

IT seems impossible for these disparagers of Mr. Knudsen to conceive that any man, not of their own particular New Deal stripe, can have the character to serve his country without thought of anything save the national interests. Further, it seems not to occur to them that Mr. Hillman, still the salaried head of his union, is more open to this kind of criticism than Mr. Knudsen, who, at large financial sacrifice, has severed his General Motors ties to enlist for the duration of the crisis. It is typical that their argument applies more to the labor leader than to the businessman.

THE point has been reached where this hostility toward Mr. Knudsen is being more and more openly expressed. It is based on nothing except general animus and it would not be important but that the men who voice it have been and still are close to the President. On the surface, Mr. Roosevelt has been supporting Mr. Knudsen, who is indispensable to the program and whose personality and performance have long been public approval. But he has not given him supreme power; he has not withdrawn himself wholly from the defense organization, as it was indicated he would; and he has not moved to silence or rebuke Mr. Knudsen's detractors within his Administration, though undoubtedly he knows who they are and what they are doing.

HOW long this sort of thing will go on and where it will get no one can say. There are some who think ultimately these "advanced thinkers" will make their usual impression on Mr. Roosevelt and drive Mr. Knudsen out of Washington. Beyond question that is what they would like to do. There are, however, two reasons for believing they will not be successful. One is because Mr. Knudsen, so long as the President wants him, is going to stick to the job and is unaffected by the campaign. The other is because, if Mr. Knudsen should be forced out of his post, there would be a great public outcry and the President could get no one to take his place without giving him that complete authority which, up to date, the New Dealers have managed to stall off and which it enrages them to contemplate. It is appalling that this kind of thing should be going on in the midst of a crisis so grave, but every informed man in Washington knows it to be true.

THE SMOKE'S THE THING

"SMOKING OUT" THE FACTS about nicotine. Experts, chemists—and intricate laboratory machines—analyze the smoke of 5 of the largest-selling brands... find that the smoke of slower-burning Camels contains 28% less nicotine than the average of the other brands tested—less than any of them!

THE SMOKE OF SLOWER-BURNING CAMELS GIVES YOU

EXTRA MILDNESS, EXTRA COOLNESS, EXTRA FLAVOR—AND 28% LESS NICOTINE

than the average of the 4 other largest-selling brands tested—less than any of them—according to independent laboratory tests of the smoke itself

FOR many a year your taste and your tongue told you there was something distinctive about Camels... something you just couldn't seem to find in any other cigarette.

Then scientific research told you Camels were slower-burning. You learned that this slower way of burning meant more mildness, more coolness, and more flavor in the smoke.

Now, new tests—impartial laboratory tests of the smoke itself—confirm still another advantage of Camel's slower burning: Less nicotine in the smoke. Less than any of the four other largest-selling brands tested—28% less than the average!

And when independent laboratory tests reveal such a distinct advantage for one brand of cigarettes over all the others tested—that's worth your looking into—right now!

Try the slower-burning cigarette... try Camels. Compare them... compare them by smoking them. The smoke's the thing!

News And Views From Pennsylvania Capital

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Jan. 20.—Turning the tables on their adversaries, Democrats in Pennsylvania are watching threatening clouds rising over the Republican horizon and are keeping their fingers crossed. The Democrats, with memories of 1938 still keen, frankly hope for the worst—for their opponents.

In a weekly tabloid newspaper published by the Democratic state committee the assertion is made that the two parties start off the year with the Democrats united and the Republicans split. The possibility envisioned earlier of a conflict between U. S. Sen. Joseph P. Guffey on the one hand and the Democratic leaders, John B. Kelly of Philadelphia and David L. Lawrence of Pittsburgh, on the other has apparently not flowered into fruition. Guffey refused to embroil himself in any attempt to secure patronage and power in the legislature.

In the Republican party, on the other hand, a state committee, W. Clyde Harer of Lycoming, has called for a new leadership in the party and in Pittsburgh a "grass roots" conference assembled under the aegis of Insurgent Frank J. Harris, Allegheny county chairman.

A bad case of the grip failed to keep Governor James away from his duties for more than one day. Overriding the protestations of his secretaries, and presumably his doctor also, the governor insisted on returning to the capitol after spending a day in bed at the executive mansion. Too many important matters warranted his attention, the governor said, for him to remain away. That day the lights in the executive offices were on until after 6 p. m.

Legislators of the 134th General Assembly are apparently not over-anxious to amend the state's election code, despite Governor James' recommendation to that effect. However, it is expected that the governor's suggestion will be followed, at least to the extent of introduction of the necessary bills. Republicans are also expected to introduce a measure to outlaw the communist party from appearing on the state ballot.

The state budget for the 1941-1942 biennium is not expected to be sent to the legislature until February when it does come down it will give the legislators plenty of work. Two years ago the budget was given to the assembly late in February.

Pennsylvania's 25th anniversary of its impressive farm show recalls its first beginning a quarter-century ago. It was a small affair then, held in the capitol room now used by legislators as a house caucus chamber. Today it has grown until it has become the largest indoor exposition of its kind in the country.

In a petition filed Saturday morning, counsel for the defendant asked for judgment in favor of their client, Carmen D'Ambrosio, in the cases of Dominick Pezzulli against him, tried several days ago, and a disagreement of the jury reported.

Pezzulli asked damages for the death of his 12 year old son who was killed by a truck owned by D'Ambrosio. A total of $40,000 damages was asked from D'Ambrosio but no verdict for either was returned.

In the makeup of the yearly budget, the county commissioners are giving some attention to expenditures that will be necessary this year for the repair and improvement of bridges in the county.

The Mill street bridge over the Neshannock creek needs painting and it is probable that the deck must be repaired. The Grant street bridge needs painting and possibly some repairs to the deck. The Cherry street bridge is not in top flight form and repairs will be needed.

Notices have been mailed by John W. Cox, secretary of the Lawrence County Supervisors' and Auditors' Association of the annual convention which will meet in the court house Monday January 27. The convention will open at 10 o'clock in the morning and will last all day.

Road questions will be discussed and it is probable that representatives of the highway department will be present to give information upon roads and bridges. A number of speakers will be heard.

there. The bridge repair bill this year will be a rather heavy one.

In the case of Ida Newmark against Francesco Mangino, in which judgment was opened on a note and a defense put in by Mangino, the jury returned a verdict of $272.85 for the plaintiff. The jury first returned a sealed verdict in which it merely said it was returning a verdict for the plaintiff. Judge Briham instructed the jurors to re-tire again and find a specific verdict in which some amount was named.

The trial list for this week is one that may take all week or it may be worked off quickly, depending upon whether or not any settlements are reached. One case that will take several days to try, it is thought—providing no settlement is reached prior to trial time—concerns the ownership of a cafe. There is said to be considerable testimony in the case.

One Quadruplet Fails To Survive

(International News Service)

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Jan. 20.—Quadruplets, three girls and a boy, were born today to 35-year-old Mrs. Eva Swanson, but one of the girls, weakened by respiratory troubles upon delivery, died.

Dr. R. A. Gilmore, who delivered the children, announced that the girl died in an incubator. The infant who succumbed was the last to be born and had already been designated as "Linda" by the parents.

The other two girls and boy were "all right," Dr. Gilmore said, and are expected to survive. Mrs. Swanson likewise was getting along favorably, the physician said.

Dr. Dafoe's Column On The Quintuplets And The Care Of Your Children

(Copyright, 1941, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Epidemics of influenza in various sections similar to those in the winter of 1917-18, show the nation is again menaced by health breakdowns comparable to those which accompanied the "war nerves" and conditions and unusual weather then. Consequently, keeping both children and adults fit is now of particular importance. The personal physician to the Dionne quintuplets discusses "Keeping Well in Winter" in a series of articles written especially for this newspaper, the first of which appears below.

Of all the things affecting winter health, I think perhaps the most important is recreation or exercise.

We need outdoor activity and fresh air as much or more in winter as in summer, but most of us have less of them. There is a tendency to stay indoors as much as possible, smoking a lot, and to do most going and coming in closed vehicles. Ventures into the open air about are undertaken, if at all, briefly on week-ends. Windows aren't opened, for there is so-called "air-conditioning". Heating systems are so efficient that homes are so many hot-houses nurturing tender plants, and like hot-houses, those who live under such conditions often prove to have little hardihood when exposed a little to disease.

Rule No. 1 for keeping well in winter for both young and old is you must get some outdoor exercise every day. I don't mean that you adults must go in for skating, skiing and similar winter sports. They're good, but they may be too much for you. If they are, that's no excuse for staying indoors. If you can't do anything else, put on proper clothing and go for a brisk walk. Try walking to work every morning for a while, instead of using the car, if you live within a couple of miles of your work. Of course, if you haven't been doing much walking, you'll get tired the first day or two. Maybe your feet will hurt if you haven't got properly fitting shoes. After a day or two, with proper shoes, you'll enjoy this way of beginning the day. Walking is an ideal exercise for young and old.

Many persons go in for bowling and swimming in pools, table tennis and similar indoor activities in winter and consider they're getting enough exercise. They're all right as far as they go, but they aren't adequate winter exercises. You need active outdoors. In the fresh air. Half an hour spent in brisk walking is more beneficial than an hour on a bowling alley or dancing. But any indoor recreation is helpful if it causes you to relax and rid you of nervous tension.

Speaking of dancing, there must be moderation in hours and in liquid refreshments in winter, both among young and old. If you go in for night entertainments, don't keep too many late hours in succession. In winter your body needs more rest than in summer. Sleep is nature's restorer. If you don't get enough of it, your health will inevitably suffer. It isn't just coincidence that the "pneumonia and influenza season" comes close upon the heels of the Christmas-New Year party season.

Diet is important, of course, in relationship to your winter exercise. It will be the subject of tomorrow's column in this series.

Trappers Having Good Season In Mercer County

(Special To The News)

MERCER, Jan. 20.—Trapping in Mercer county so far this winter has been better than during any of the last six winters, according to reports given today by out-of-county fur buyers.

An increased demand for furs and proportionate increases in prices has resulted in larger catches this winter than in any recent year.

Most prevalent animal sought by local trappers is the skunk. Average price for skunk pelts is about $1.15. Muskrats are next in popularity with local trappers. Their hides bring an average of $1.50.

There have been a large number of coon killed in the county, as well as red foxes, possums, weasels and a few mink.

Skiing is a thrilling sport to its 5,000,000 followers. Like other strenuous sports, it has its dangers.

Many novices attempt feats beyond their skill and endurance. They should slow down when rounding blind curves.

They should beware of slopes too steep for safety. Snow blindness can be prevented by wearing goggles.

Skiers should travel in groups and remain together. A lone skier may fall, be injured and lie in the cold for hours.

Cold weather aggravates injuries otherwise trivial. Most ski clubs have first-aid patrols to assist the injured.

Skiing is of great physical benefit to many persons. Judgment and care will reduce the large number of skiing accidents.

Continue New Castle Drive For Industry At Washington, D. C.

By ARTHUR C. WIMER
(Special Washington Correspondent, New Castle News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 20.—A delegation of four New Castle spokesmen continued a drive here to get additional defense contracts for New Castle industry.

A delegation of eight came to the capital city to confer on this matter with both Pennsylvania senators, Representative Louis Graham of Beaver, and national defense commission officials. At the end of the week, five of the group returned to New Castle but four others remained to follow leads.

Those who remained in Washington were County Commissioner Joseph F. Travers, City Councilmen Joseph D. Alexander and D. O. Davies, and Louis Genkinger. Those who returned included Norman Clark, president of the Greater New Castle Association; Senator J. K. McQuiddy, C. Ed Smith Jr., John

Mr. Cooke has been commissioned to mobilize into the defense program idle plant facilities in all parts of the nation. The New Castle men expect to meet with Defense Commissioner Sidney Hillman.

"We are following every lead we can find," declared County Commissioner Travers. "That's about all that can be said right now."

Is Accorded Honor

B. & O. Men Pay Tribute To

Long-Time Employee Who

Is Now Retired

B. & O. Railroad company employees filled the dining hall of the Mahoningtown Methodist church Saturday evening to honor William H. Kilbreath, 433 Court street, employed as water station repairman at New Castle Junction and who retired from active service December 31 to accept annuity.

Trainmen, engineers, shopmen, carmen, officials, clerks, foremen, and trackmen were on hand to testify to their long standing friendship for the honor guest.

Assistant Division Engineer M. H. Beard served as chairman to open the session. Rev. Blasdel of the Mahoningtown Methodist church was called upon for the invocation and the dinner was served.

At the close of the meal, Division Engineer J. W. Purdy was introduced as toastmaster and as head of the maintenance of way department congratulated the honor guest on the splendid record compiled in more than 28 years service as repairman and foreman at New Castle. Mayor Charles B. Mayne, Carl Allen, chairman of Sheet Metal Workers; Frank Doyle, chairman of Federated Shop Crafts; Storekeeper F. J. Lindoerfer, Track Supervisor J. W. Riggins and Car Foreman R. A. Garrigus spoke of their association with W. H. Kilbreath and commented on the friendliness and good will that marked their relations.

Many and varied were the stories told to confirm the general knowledge as to the loyalty, reliability and craftsmanship of the man whom they honored at this dinner, and if a few secrets were exposed they were found on the right side of the ledger to make more clear the reasons for the high esteem in which he was held.

At the close of the program an easy chair and a floor lamp were placed before W. H. Kilbreath and his wife and these were presented to them as a token from their many friends that they might cherish the memories of the past and find in the future a remembrance of the friendship and goodwill so abundantly displayed.

Guests were present for this dinner from Youngstown, Cleveland, Warren, Cuyahoga Falls, Lodi and Akron, and these faced the severe weather and bad conditions that they might be on hand.

Many Use Reading Rooms At Library

Report Estimates That 47,602 Persons Served By Local Library

It was found in the annual report of the New Castle free public library that the reading rooms are quite a popular place. According to the report, 23,082 persons made use of the reading rooms in 1940.

While a check is maintained on reading room attendance, many people use the rooms who are not seen by the staff as they enter the building and therefore are not tallied. For this reason, it is believed that the figure could therefore be much larger.

Although only 28.5 per cent of the population of the city is registered as borrowers, it has been estimated that 47,602 persons were served by the library during the year.

It was also found in the report that there are 13,583 persons registered as borrowers. Of this number, 2,454 were registered in 1940 as new borrowers and 1,189 were re-registered.

CRAZY AS A LOON

The expression "crazy as a loon" refers to the wild, weird cry of the loon, a bird about the size of a goose whose ordinary note is melodious and far-carrying.

Many and varied were the stories told to confirm the general knowledge as to the loyalty, reliability and craftsmanship of the man whom they honored at this dinner, and if a few secrets were exposed they were found on the right side of the ledger to make more clear the reasons for the high esteem in which he was held.

At the close of the program an easy chair and a floor lamp were placed before W. H. Kilbreath and his wife and these were presented to them as a token from their many friends that they might cherish the memories of the past and find in the future a remembrance of the friendship and goodwill so abundantly displayed.

Guests were present for this dinner from Youngstown, Cleveland, Warren, Cuyahoga Falls, Lodi and Akron, and these faced the severe weather and bad conditions that they might be on hand.

Unbeaten Titans Grab Ninth Win; W. & J. Is Victim

Titans Pile Up Sensational 44-37 Victory; Dummir, Ridd High Scorers

COME FROM REAR TO COP THRILLER

(Special To The News) WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 20.—Westminster college's slick cage edition stands as the lone undefeated collegiate aggregation in western Pennsylvania.

The swift moving Titans electrified 2,300 frenzied spectators by sensationally sidestepping hitherto unbeaten Washington & Jefferson college, 44-37, Saturday night in Washington.

Praxies lead 12-3. Bent on averaging a one-point loss suffered in 1939-40, the Lawrence countyans spotted the Praxies a 12-3 advantage as first period hostilities ended. Winners of 12 consecutive victories, including four wins stacked up near the close of last season, W. & J. seemed on its way to another win.

The thrilling fray moved into the second period before the Titans started rolling. As the half ended, the scoreboard showed a 19-17 W. & J. lead. The little presidents guarded the lead until midway in the third period.

Dale Dummir, clever Westminster center, cashed in an assortment of side and long shots to shave the Praxies' lead, 25-24.

Titans Ahead. With five minutes of play remaining, the Titans still held the top post. Ted Skokos, Praxie reserve, pumped in a double play from mid-court to give W. & J. a 36-35 advantage. Held in check during most of the game, Stan Wasik, Westminster guard, intercepted a pass, dribbled the length of the court and scored. Fouled on the play, Wasik added the charity toss to give Westminster a 38-35 edge.

Wasik followed this sensational play by hitting the mesh from close up extending the Titans' lead, 40-35. Tidrick's foul gave the Praxies some hope of pulling the clutch out of the fire. Buzz Ridd, Westminster forward, followed by hitting the Praxies' hopes by potting a side shot.

The Titans resorted to a man-to-man defense in the opening half but shifted to an exceedingly air proof zone pattern that mystified the Praxies throughout the third and fourth stanzas. Since Duquesne met defeat at the hands of Ohio State, Saturday night, Westminster

'Greyhounds' Aim For Third Title

New Wilmington Cagers Pace Section 20 Race With Four Victories

New Wilmington High's rangy cagers are aiming for their third consecutive Section 20 championship.

So far, their marksmanship seems as accurate as the workings of a barometer. The "Greyhounds," rated as a classier outfit than the 1939-40 club, have bagged four straight loop victories.

New Wilmington removed Shenango from the list of undefeated with a 32-20 setback Friday night. Remaining league members have all tasted defeat, leaving the college towners alone in this respect.

Tuesday night's program finds the New Wilmington machine swishing hoop shots with Union High at New Wilmington. Union may hit its stride tomorrow night and trouble the leaders no end.

At Bessemer two of the most bitter athletic rivals in the county are paired. The tussle brings together Shenango and Bessemer. After coping six straight games, the East New Castle shooters bowed before New Wilmington.

The third battle pits Mt. Jackson against Wampum on the Shelby floor, Ellwood City. So far as is known, the game will be played. Wampum's last two league games were cancelled due to a slight flu epidemic.

Pitt Prepares For Waynesburg

Game To Be Played On Pitt Floor On Wednesday Evening

(Special To The News) PITTSBURGH, Jan. 20.—Pitt's last athletic endeavor of the first semester of the school year 1940-41, will be made on Wednesday night, January 22, when the basketball squad attempts to run its current winning streak to three games at the expense of Waynesburg. After the Waynesburg game there will be no activity on the Pitt card until after examinations which begin Saturday and last through the following Friday.

A year ago the Yellowjackets upset a favored Pitt team, and the Panthers of 1941 are set on avoiding a recurrence of such a defeat. The Pitt court season is now better than half over, and the players have visions of turning in the best won and lost record in years.

The Panther's senior combination was broken up against Carnegie Tech for the first time, when Sam Milanovich remained on the sidelines with an injured knee. Whether or not the tall Aliquippa senior is able to go against the Jackets will not be known until next week.

Wheeler Asserts Lease-Lend Bill Can Be Defeated

Foes Seek To Unite On Substitute Aid Measure He Says

TOO MUCH POWER
GIVEN PRESIDENT

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Declaring that a senate majority opposes principles of President Roosevelt's lease-lend plan, Sen. Wheeler (D) Mont., asserted today that the "debtorship bill" can be defeated if foes can unite on a substitute British-aid proposal.

This confident prediction of the senate non-interventionist leader—first real claim of the opposition that the all-out aid to Britain bill can be defeated—was made after consulting colleagues.

While the house foreign affairs committee suspended hearings on the bill until tomorrow because of the inauguration, both administration leaders and the opposition continued to seek votes among members in informal conferences.

Such notables as former ambassadors to England Joseph P. Kennedy and to France, William C. Bullitt, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Norman Thomas and former assistant secretary of war Handford MacNider, are expected to appear this week. Kennedy is to be the first witness.

To Much Power
Foes of the proposal are encouraged by Kennedy's speech asking that the bill be curbed, but administration leaders scoffed that others know more about international situation than Kennedy.

"We already have a senate majority opposed to the principle of the president's lend-lease bill," Wheeler said. "I have not made a check of the members of the senate, but there are many senators who favor further aid to England but who are definitely opposed to giving the president dictatorial power to transfer lease, or give any portion of all of our navy, army, ships, tanks or ammunition as he sees fit."

"They likewise do not like the idea of turning over unnamed billions to the president to use in any way he deems advisable in helping England, France, Greece, China or any other nation that may be designated as being attacked by aggressors."

"I feel that the congress might just as well abdicate if this legislation passes, and instead of calling it an inauguration we ought to call it a coronation when the president takes the oath of office."

Wheeler explained that a "goodly number" of senators favor voting a certain, definite amount of money and give it to Britain, while another group does not want to give any money until Britain has exhausted her resources.

Jewelry Ceremonial At Y. W. On Tuesday

Several Girls To Become Jewelry Wearers At Program
At 7 O'Clock

Tuesday evening in the auditorium of the Y. W. C. A. the Girl Reserve Interclub Council will sponsor the Girl Reserve jewelry ceremonial. This event will take place at the regular meeting of the Ne-Ca-Hi club at 7 o'clock.

In the Girl Reserve movement, commercialization of the Girl Reserve symbol receives very little emphasis. There are, however, the Girl Reserve chromium plaque which every Girl Reserve may buy, and three pieces of jewelry, the ring, the pin, and the bracelet which any Girl Reserve may wear if she is willing to become an intelligent wearer.

In order for her to become an intelligent wearer, she states her willingness to meet certain standards drawn up by the local Girl Reserve interclub council, standards that will give a girl information on the historical background of the Y. W. C. A. and of Girl Reserves, their philosophy, methods and goals.

It is clearly understood that none of the jewelry is given as an award. The following girls will tomorrow evening become wearers of the symbol: Florence Badger and Vera Mae Tanner, Shenango club; Peggy Kelley and Betty Reed, Ne-Ca-Hi club; Beverly Fox, Franklin club; Dorothy Ward and Shirley Webber, Elm street "Y" clubs; Sandra Hamilton and Mary Louise Ward, Washington club.

The ceremonial will be as follows:
Processional.
Girl Reserve Code song, Dorothy Ward, Shirley Webber.
"What Is the Y. W. C. A.," Betty Reed.
"Girls Reserves of the Y. W. C. A.," Peggy Kelley.
Song, "Girl Reserve Quest," assembly.
"Goals of Girl Reserves," Sandra Hamilton.
"Standards to Become a Wearer," Florence Badger, Phyllis Burdette.
Symbol, Vera Mae Tanner, Beverly Fox, Mary Louise Ward.
Presentation of jewelry, Miss Elizabeth Yingling.
"Follow the Glean,"
Recessional begins on second verse.

A cordial invitation is extended to the girls and advisers of all Girl Reserve clubs, to parents and friends to attend. The doors of the auditorium will close at 7 o'clock.

Backward, turn backward, oh time, in thy flight; give us three years to get ready to fight.
